I will check with Lori or Leslie Savage on if the Railroad Commission has video capabilities. I don't recall hearing one way or the other. TCEQ does, but they were not involved with the retrospective case story in Wise County.

Hi guys,

We are trying to put a timeline together for the upcoming activities related to the release of the water assessment. As you know, we committed to getting back to the twelve states we visited in researching the study. One of the first steps is to try to have meetings with the four states where the retrospective studies were from. One of those is TX. I wanted to get your feel as to whether or not you think they would be ok if we did that briefing by videoconference. It is anticipated we will be in Dallas for a briefing on the assessment for the participating R6 states later, but this would be a briefing for TX only on their part of the retrospective studies. I assume they have video conferencing capabilities. If you guys think it would be ok, I will call Lori Wrotenberry and Richard Hyde to make sure.

Looking forward to seeing some of you next week in LA.

Thanks,
Teresa
